As there was not evidence on which arrested him again and demanded that he be detained until the matter was looked into That afternoon a search party was found, evidently used as a disguise.

HE CONFESSES. He was confronted with the bag and asked to explain how it was that it was found near the boy stuttered and stammered, and after being cross-examined he completely broke down and confessed that he was guilty, but begged for mercy. The angry crowd were going to lynch him, but after a hasty consultation they decided to let the law take its course. then bound and taken before Capt. Frank Meyers, another justice of the peace, and given a hearing, after which he was committed to the Leesburg jail to await the action of the grand jury. The men then repaired to the home of their leader and there discussed the crime.

tion to lynch the negro. The jail where the prisoner was lodged is a large, strong structure, and the jailor, Mr. Charles F. Laycock, a determined officer Strategy had to be used. So one of their number was bound hand and foot and taken to the fail as a prisoner. The jailor thinking an arrest had been made opened the large iron doors and the crowd filed in, carrying the bound man. As soon as they were well inside the jailor was seized and his keys taken from him. Away in one corner of cell No. 3 they found the man they sought. Quickly securing him the crowd

Here a huge derrick used to load marble from the Virginia quarries on the cars stood out in bold relief igainst the sky. A rope was secured and fastened around the prisoner's neck and the other end thrown over the boom of the derrick. Without giving him time to pray he was hauled up and left dangling, while the party withw. The sheriff was notified and the body was cut down about daylight this morning. A special dispatch to THE EVENING STAR from Leesburg this afternoon says: About 1 med men, who quietly picketed the corners, and then two of their number, with what appeared to be a prisoner between them, approached the jail and demanded admittance with their prisoner. The jailor opened the outside door, admitted them, and they walked in the inner department of cells. They there demanded the keys of the jailor, who refused to deliver them. In the meantime a large number of the party had entered the jail and took possession and the keys were forced from the jailor and the cells entered. The boy who had attempted the rape and who is eighteen years old was then taken out, the keys returned to the jailor and the party mounted horses, which had been brought, and proceeded to the old freight station lot and hung the prisoner to a large derrick erected for the purpose of handling blocks of marble. After hanging him they shot him many times in the body and mounted their horses and rode off rapidly. The sort and town authorities were quickly of the structure and measures were at once take to investigate the affair. The jury of the body has since o'clock this afternoon.
